

Leave NJ's Do Not Call List law the way it is. I can finally sit down to dinner with my family and not have to be bothered by telemarketers. There are still violators, but not nearly as many as before. With only the federal law in place, I was still receiving too many unwanted, unsolicited calls. They have finally dropped off. It's bad enough getting all of the spam in my email; I don't need the phone calls to resume! In fact, we should start looking into the spam issue.
